Diversity of nesting pattern in some local insects, from Solapur
District, Maharashtra

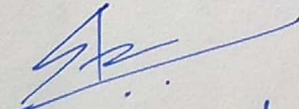

Participation – B.Sc II year students

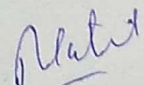

Year- 2018-2019.

Abstract

Arthropods are the most diverse group of organisms on Earth, and have been for hundreds of millions of years. Insects are invertebrates and the largest group within the arthropod phylum. In the present study an attempt has been made to reveal to study different species of insects and their nesting pattern. Analysis of this nest was carried out in this study showed that the insects with nesting behavior have evolved with good parental care. In this study, we examine the variety insect species with their special nesting pattern with good regulation of inside temperature. Some manmade activities results loss of nesting habitat of some insets populations with ecological importance can also be noticed.

Introduction -

Insects are most diverse group of animals includes million of species. Insects may be found nearly in all environment. Increasing human population, urbanization, farming and pollution threat to biodiversity and natural areas (ChristofScheupp et al.; 2001). Insects occupy various types of ecosystems and perform many important ecological function (Sodhi et al.; 2004). Butchmann et al., (2012) Honey bees are found on every continent which contains insect pollinated flowering plants. Bees and Wasps create nests in which to live. Many insects build nest to protect their eggs, larva, to store food and also to capture the prey.

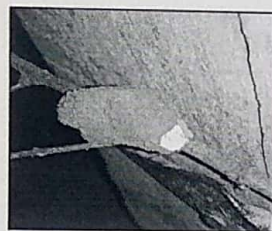

Material and Methods -

The study was conducted in Solapur district, Maharashtra. Study sites include natural areas and farming areas. Photography of insect nest was done without disturbing their natural habitat. Photograph of insect nest observed and analyzed for further study.

Discussion -

Bees often live in natural cavities such as hollows in trees, base of leaves. Bees and Wasps supply food to their young ones. Mud Wasp made nest with mud. Vas cell mud dauber build a pot like nest cell. Pipe mud dauber is from family Crabridae builds nests in the shape of cylindrical tubes or pipes. Asian Paper wasp build their nest with papery material. Paper wasps nest have small, open cells that resembles round honey combs. Paper wasp nest are smaller in size and grey in colour. Honey bee is a social flying insect with genus Apis. They construct colonial nest from wax for their surplus production and storage of honey. Honey bee nest is mass of hexagonal wax cells. Ant are social insects: They defend their colonies build by mud. Colonies contains thousand to millions of workers. Ant hills are made by soil or clay and sand materials. Workers carry soil and tiny pebbles in their mandibles to built nest. Spider nests are mini biomass located on wall, trees, crevices. Spider build webs in areas. Webs allow spider to catch prey. Spider web silk has tensile strength and also waterproof. Bagworm species also known as case moths. Caterpillar of this species builds small protective case in which they can hide. Bagworm cases attached to rock and trees. Case is 2 to 8 cm in length. The case is made by plant material like sticks or leaves.
